

Information is the primary tool necessary for a democracy to run well. When information is controlled by self serving corporations, people recieve limited information about their world, and usually don't know that the information they absorb is being controlled and filtered. Don't kill diversity by funneling together the flow of events and opinions into one.